Had the roll of all the theatrical offerings touring this sec-tion of the country, and playing in cit-ies of Anderson's size been before the management to select from, he could not have been more fortunate in his choosing of an opening attraction.

Tuneful, sprightly and with a riot of color and elaborate scenery, the performance proved a favorite from the rise of the curtain un. 1 it went down on the last of three " rounded acts.

Allendance Was Lare

The audience was by a. the largest that has ever gathered in Anderson on a similar occasion. There were few if any vacant seats left in the house, and this fact, when it is taken by those few men who are responsible for Anderson having today one of the most modern playhouses of the Carolinas.

a wealth of splendid scenery, "The Prince of Tonight" made a distinct hit with the large audience. There are several very clever lines thorughout the play, a large number of good songs and scores of hearty laughs. While the several parts were excellently done by those entrusted with the carrying out of them, special mention should be made of the work of Miss Mabel Laffin, as Virginia Stuart; Tom Arnold, as Jim Sutherland, The Prince; Frank Harsh, as Daniel Stuart; Were LeVere, as Mrs. Daniel Stuart; Miss Eva Phelps, as Bonnie Stuart. Bonnie Stuart.

Very Pretty Story.

The story of "The Prince of Tonight" is a very pretty and attractive one, and the scenes being laid at Palm Beach, Fla., permitted the bringing in of features especially dear to the hearts of Southerners, for instance, that of the field of the leaf that the leaf stance, that of the finale of the last act, "Dixie."

Those who saw "The Prince of Tonight" enjoyed it immensely, and they went away from the theatre without that had taste in the mouth that some-times prevails after one has witnessed a modern musical comedy. If "The Prince of Tonight" is on the road next season, it will receive a very hearty welcome to Anderson.

Moved Off Smoothly.

As generally known, the directors of the Anderson Development com-pany, owners of the theatre building, had charge of the first night's perfor-mance at the theatre, that is, they received all proceeds from the sale of tickets. The theatre is not formally turned over to the lessees until today.

Although the lessees of the theatre are not actually in charge of the amusement house until today, Mr. C. H. Bleich, secretary and treasurer of the Bleich Ameusement company, les-sees, and manager of the theatre, has sees, and manager of the theatre, has been here for several days superintending the finishing up the playhouse. Final arrangements for the grand opening last night of the theatre were largely in Mr. Bleich's hands, and it is to his great credit that the entire program moved off without a single hitch of the most trivial character.
